Customs Broker

Who, What, Why?

360 degree need for a Customs Broker

With the entire worldwide open for growing your business and increasing your customer base, what are you waiting for? Oh, yes! We do have a roadblock here. Customs Clearance is a mandatory process for importing and exporting goods from one country to another. To make this process easier and efficient, we have professionals who can help you and they are called Customs Broker.

Customs Broker has complete knowledge on customs clearance and helps you with your shipment in no time. They are licensed professionals who are updated and one step ahead in identifying and understanding changes to rules, regulations, and legislation. Understanding and analysing every element of the supply chain is also their strong forte. They network and establish relationships with Custom agencies and other government bodies. They're nudged into all transportation modes.

What exactly is the role of a Customs Broker?

A customs broker is an angel in disguise who will help you and even save you from making costly mistakes related to customs clearance. They do this by ensuring all the bond requirements are met and make sure if the paperwork complies with the applicable regulations.

To give you a vivid picture on what all a Customs Broker does predominantly, please check the following:

- They ensure all your imports and exports comply with the laws and regulations of all applicable governing bodies at the given time.

- They work on preparation and submittal of the required information and payments to Customs authorities on the behalf of the importer/exporter.
- They Verify all the required documents and ensure the documentation is completed fully and accurately before being submitted to regulatory bodies to save time and avoid setbacks.
- They deep dive into the classification of goods and ensure that your goods are correctly classified.
- With their immense knowledge in this area, they provide personalized advice and contribute effectively to your business success.

If you feel that you can manage all these on your own, we are laying out here the need for you to have a Customs broker and how it can turn out to be a game-changer for your imports and exports.

When an importer imports his goods, automatically he becomes responsible for declaring to Customs what's being imported, where it's coming from, and how much it costs. Only after satisfying all these criteria, importer's obligations are met, the goods are ready for entry by the Customs. Besides the functions mentioned above, the customs broker also performs a wide range of services for services out of which filing the Customs entry turns out to be the core service.

CUSTOMS CLEARANCE

Every step in the entry process have to be completed before the Customs releases the shipment for delivery, unless and until the Customs is satisfied with all the legal requirements, shipment won't be released.

To be more precise, just like how you're an expert on your business, your Customs broker is an expert on Customs regulations, tariff schedules, and free trade agreements. Blindfolded, you can rely on them to understand your business and guide you on how to effectively use every means available to reduce your duty liability.

A skilled and reliable customs broker will take the time to get to know your business, your supply chain relationships, and your preferred trade lanes. On contrary to the popular misconception, Brokerage is not just getting the details right but deeper than that. It is a hidden opportunity – to reduce duties, avoid penalties, and eliminate compliance risk. With a trustworthy customs broker, you can be secured and have the comfort of knowing that cost and risk reduction have been covered 100% well ahead of time.
